

Chapter 975 You Don't Want To Be Exposed

The deposit went smoothly, and Trevor left the bank after everything was settled.

When he arrived at the bank, he was ridiculed a lot. But when he left, they all watched him in awe.

The Sanderson family in Esterham had a great influence on this city.

But Trevor didn't care about it. He was even thinking about something that those people in Glory Bank didn't dare to imagine.

"I just came across Musa's promiscuous activity in his office. Can it be useful to me in destroying Dooley and his family?" Trevor murmured while walking.

Since Musa was Zakai's confidant, Trevor decided to find a way to replace Musa with his own man.

In that case, Zakai would never be able to take back the five million dollars he deposited in this bank.

If Zakai wanted to use him as a scapegoat, Trevor could also carry out effective countermeasures.

Trevor could foresee that Zakai would not tolerate him for a long time.

Then, they would have a falling-out.

Then Laila's image suddenly popped into Trevor's mind.

That woman was a typical snob. When she found out Trevor's identity, her arrogance turned to humility.

However, when he entered the elevator, she showed a hesitant expression.

Obviously, Laila knew what Musa and that woman were doing in his office.

But she didn't stop Trevor or inform Musa.

"So, she is taking advantage of the situation. She wants to use this opportunity to take revenge on Musa or that female teller."

At the thought of this, Trevor's eyes narrowed, and his lips curved into a smile.

Laila's attitude was very subtle. Maybe he could use her to deal with Musa.

"If there is a conflict between the two, they must have their own demands. Maybe this is my chance."

Trevor made up his mind. He turned around and went back to Glory Bank. He planned to observe Laila secretly, and maybe he would get some useful information.

Soon, he found something surprising.

At noon, the bank tellers began their lunch break.

Trevor noticed that Laila sneaked into the depths of the bank, which was the storeroom. It was where the dog-eared banknotes were kept.

These banknotes were supposed to be taken back to the central bank to be destroyed. But Laila fumbled under a table and took out a pile of banknotes that was about to be sent back.

She looked around cautiously. But she was so unfortunate that she didn't find Trevor hiding in the dark.

Thinking it was safe, Laila quickly hid the banknotes in her small handbag. Then she regained her composure and walked to the door.

From the looks of it, she was very familiar with this job. That was why she could regain her composure quickly. Apparently, this was not her first time doing this.

She was bold. How dare she steal those banknotes!

Trevor touched his chin, and there was a meaningful look in his eyes.

This kind of thing was enough to send Laila to jail.

She was so bold that she dared to do such a shameless thing in the bank.

Trevor followed Laila without being noticed. He saw her open her car door and put her handbag inside.

"Laila, I didn't expect you to do such an illegal thing. You dare to break the law!"

Trevor's faint voice sounded behind Laila. She was so scared that she fell to the ground with a thud. "What are you talking about? That's nonsense!"

Trevor sneered, "I saw it with my own eyes. You stole a lot of money. You have stolen a huge amount over the years, right? Since you can take the banknotes out of the warehouse without any problems, you must have many accomplices, including the warehouse keeper and the security guards in the monitoring room."

Laila was so frightened that her face turned deathly pale. Her whole body trembled. She slumped on the ground and could only stare blankly at Trevor. She couldn't say a word.

Trevor's voice was particularly gentle, but there was a hint of coldness in his smile when he threatened her, "You don't want to be exposed, right?"
