Chapter 741

As Cordy rushed to the airport with Richard, he asked nervously, "Did something bad happen, Mommy?"

She never looked this grim.

"Yeah. Your great-grandfather was taken ill."

"Is it serious?"

"Yeah."

Richard stopped asking at that point, understanding his mother's concerns immediately.

Once they touched down at the capital, the car Sean arranged took her straight to an aristocratic private hospital, where the entire first floor was now completely reserved for Jesse Cranston's use.

Sean was waiting just as she got out of the elevator, and she asked, "How is he?"

"The doctors already operated on him. He's in the ICU now."

Lucas was alone, and Nana was not in sight.

Richard saw him too, and excitement showed in his eyes.

His enthusiasm never dampened whenever he saw Lucas-he did not talk to Lucas earlier at the hospital because the atmosphere there had been grim.

However, he refrained from going up to Lucas, and the thought that his daddy had abandoned his mommy made him upset again.

Lucas was actually surprised to see them there.

Should they not be staying at Cranston Hall?

Cordy was also surprised to see Lucas there, since he should be staying with the Lynds.

It was as if they would inevitably run into each other if they were in the same city...

When Cordy heard Richard's voice, she immediately regained her wits.

Her instinct made her exhaust all her strength, so she knew that she must have hurt Richard with her tight embrace.

She let go of Richard.

When Richard came out of Cordy's arms and turned around, his expression changed drastically. "Lucas!"

He screamed in fear.

On the other hand, Cordy's heart skipped a beat.

The sudden pain filled her with suffocation at that instant.

She abruptly turned around and saw Lucas who had collapsed on the ground.

At that moment, the motorcycle that had lost control fell to the ground, and the driver fell to the side too. On the other hand, Lucas was crushed by the motorcycle.

"Mister, are you okay?"

The security guard immediately went to him.

Some people also gathered around.

Someone said, "It was so dangerous just now. If it wasn't for this man who stepped forward all of a sudden and turned the motorcycle around, countless people might be hit and hurt."

Lucas was only pushed out of the emergency room after two hours.

Sitting in a wheelchair, his legs were plastered, and his head was bandaged.

It seemed like his injuries were too serious.

"How is he, doctor?" Cordy immediately asked.

"His right leg is broken, and we've inserted a metal rod in it to stabilize it for two to three months. If there's no problem, he needs to rest for another three months after we take it out. He'll recover by then."

"Will he become a lame person?" Cordy asked cautiously.

Lucas then looked up at her.

Did she want him to become a lame person?

"Don't worry. He won't." The doctor sounded amiable before he continued, "But because there's a slight impact on his head, we suggest letting him stay for observation for a night. If he's fine tomorrow, he can be discharged from the hospital."

"Okay, thank you, doctor." Cordy thanked the doctor.

She finally heaved a huge sigh of relief inwardly.

His injuries had something to do with her no matter what.

"Thank you, Mommy."

Richard was never a person who was good at showing his emotion, but he did not hide it at that time.

Did he see Lucas as his daddy or a substitute?

Cordy did not want to have conflicting emotions about it.

Facing Lucas, she said, "If you're not fine with it..."

"I'm fine with it." Lucas cut her off.

"After all, there's another bed in this ward. Richard and I can sleep in that bed," Cordy suggested.

The hospital beds in the WIP ward were extraordinarily large.

"Hmm."

"What do you need now?" Cordy questioned.

Since she decided to stay, she should take care of the patient.

"Hmm." Cordy nodded and ordered, "Go to bed early."

"Okay."

After that, Cordy walked into the bathroom.

On the other hand, Richard behaved well and slept on the accompanying bed beside Lucas.

Covering himself with the blanket, he turned to look at Lucas.

At that time, Lucas had turned his attention back to his phone again.

However, he had clicked on a website for half an hour, but he did not scroll to another page.

Other than the fact that their arrivals had made him absent-minded, which he could not pinpoint, he could see many baffling things appearing in his head. Even being hospitalized felt like déjà vu.

However, he could recall nothing even after he dwelled on it carefully.

He lost his memory three years ago.

“I won’t regret it.’ Lucas sounded firm.

“Why are you still so stubborn?” Richard behaved like an adult. ‘Aren’t you worried that my mommy will give you up?”

“I originally had nothing to do with your mommy.’

“But you can’t forget about my mommy. If not, why did you risk your life to save her?”

Lucas inevitably swallowed slightly and answered, “Your mommy got into danger because of me. I was just returning the favor.”

“That’s just your excuse.” Richard sounded certain.

“You’re just a ten-year-old kid. What do you know?” Lucas pretended to say at ease, “Kids should study more and worry about less.”

“Hmph!” Richard became slightly angry because of Lucas’ words. “I won’t help you if you regret it.’

However, Lucas did not take it to heart.

Lying under the bed, Richard faced away from Lucas and slept.

One could tell that he was furious from the back of his head.

However, Lucas chuckled.

He had an indescribable good impression of Richard.

His eyes fluttered.

He nearly thought that he might die the moment he slipped and fell.

Now, she was even putting up such an innocent look. Whom was she trying to annoy?

“Do you need my help?” Cordy tried to reconfirm it with him.

“What do you think?” Lucas gnashed his teeth.

He was in such a sorry state now. Did she want him to give up his dignity and crawl back up?

Cordy was struck speechless.

He sounded so righteous when he had a favor to ask.

She got up, and carefully, she tried her best not to wake Richard up.

She then walked to Lucas and worked hard to help him straighten the wheelchair.

After that, she tried her best to help him up.

He was so heavy.

"It hurts so badly. I can't get up." Lucas sounded quite rude.

Cordy took a deep breath and advised herself inwardly and repeatedly that Lucas was hurt because of her. She was too weak just now that she made him fall again. Hence, she decided not to be angry at him.

She squatted and helped him up again.

With her help, he almost leaned all his weight on her.

She seriously doubted if he was purposely trying to take revenge on him.

She finally helped him stand beside the toilet bowl. "Do you need me to take off your pants for you too?"

"Cordy, how shameful you are!" Lucas became agitated.

"Why are you so agitated all of a sudden?" Cordy was shocked by his sudden loudness. So, she flared up in a rage. 'Did I see through your thoughts?' 1

"Get out!" Lucas vented his anger out.

Surprisingly, he did not retort to her.

Of course, Cordy did not notice that much either.

She would always argue with him.

Besides, she had never met a person who rendered her so helpless and speechless.

After she confirmed that he had put on his pants, she opened the door and walked in.
Lucas was standing motionlessly in front of the toilet bowl in the washroom.
He might have learned his lesson from his fall just now, so he did not dare to move impulsively now.
Cordy gave him a hand, and he then leaned onto her without a tinge of embarrassment.
He made use of her righteously.
She then helped him into the wheelchair and pushed him into the ward.
After exhausting herself again, she managed to help him to bed, and she was about to return to her bed to rest.
However, Lucas stopped her out of the blue and called out, "Cordy."
"Is there anything else?"
"I suddenly feel like wiping my body."
Cordy was at a loss for words. She wanted to ensure that she had not heard him wrongly.
"You and Dicky smell so good from your bath, but I smell like nothing but sweat. I feel so uncomfortable, but I can't shower. Can't I wipe my body too?" Lucas became displeased by her stare, so he increased his voice.
"Can you lower your voice? Dicky needs to sleep," Cordy said while holding her anger back.
