Chapter 791

When Cordy tapped into the camera, she never expected to see Dicky helping Lucas shower.

Her eyes were burning from the not-quite family-friendly scene.

And what does Lucas take her son for, ordering him around like that?!

Cordy was reeling from rage, even as the scene of the screen left her flushing.

How could that man be so shameless?

Cordy promptly turned off the screen, but not before having a clear view of the scene before her.

It therefore remained clear and stuck in her mind...

Hold on.

Cordy's eyes narrowed, and her cheeks which reddened from anger and embarrassment slowly turned pale.

Growling through his teeth, Lucas demanded, "Are you that much of a pervert, Cordy?!"

Forget stripping his bathrobe-she was trying to pull off his boxes, all while Dicky was watching!

His cheeks were so hot one could cook an egg on it; though he knew he shouldn't see it, he couldn't pry his eyes away from curiosity...

Stop.

Lucas quickly realized his thoughts had strayed too far off, and this was far from the point-he was supposed to be stopping Cordy from taking off his boxers!

Cordy in turn came to her senses, as if she finally realized what she was actually doing...but all she wanted was the truth!

On the other hand, she meant nothing to Lucas, especially since she was molesting her while repeatedly claiming that she despised him before.

"Are you possessed or something?!" he demanded, and firmly tried to push her away.

But she held fast, because she wanted the truth-to find out if Lucas was John Levine.

Lucas had never experienced such a move from Cordy.

He was in his wheelchair, and with one of his hands keeping a tight grip on his boxers, he couldn't push her away with his free hand.

All he could feel at that moment was her wild, searing kiss.

It wasn't as if they had never kissed before. That one time, he couldn't resist doing it as Cordy was reeling from rage back then.

What was more, that time felt totally different from this kiss...because right now, he had no desire to push her away.

In fact, he was starting to get hot and bothered.

Even if Cordy was awful at kissing, and one might describe it as rough and uncouth-his heart was beginning to beat endlessly with a sense of anticipation he couldn't describe.

No! He must not fall for this woman's seduction!

Lucas warned himself then that he had a girlfriend, and this behavior was cheating.

Dicky mentioned that Lucas was amnesiac... So, that was true?

Was he hit in the head and subsequently lost his memories when the bomb struck?

He had reconstructive surgery on the face because it was necessary, since he was terribly wounded there.

But Lucas's dossier that Sean gave her..It couldn't have been fake.

What on earth had gone wrong? Was this man John Levine or not?!

Nonetheless, Cordy's tears started streaming as if she had lost herself- she was feeling so conflicted, and she was unsure if she should be happy or agonized.

"Hey, you don't have to go that far!" Lucas was shocked by her suddenly bawling.

In previous confrontations, neither of them really came up on top... But now, Cordy was there in front of him, bawling!

He didn't say anything out of line today, either!

Lucas continued his rant, his ire rising steadily the entire time. "I have a fiancée and we're supposed to get married soon, and we've been together for three years! Somehow, that's no match for the three months I've met you, and now, I'm going to be scum! F*ck! What is it about you that draws me to you, that I'd fall so hard for you?!"

He was blaming Cordy for everything, even though she was always so harsh to him and never tried to seduce him-ever.

Yet he fell for her, anyway.

Was he some sort of masochist?!

"Say something!" he snarled furiously, feeling a little creeped out as Cordy continued to gape at him.

Cordy came to her senses, since her mind was still processing whether Lucas was John Levine.

Everything he said never crossed her mind, and it was certainly not the fact that he was engaged.

"Say what?" she asked blankly.
