

Chapter 1653 Brandon, Today Is Your Last Day

A loud sound ripped through the air, echoing loudly.

Brandon's car had been hit and was now dangerously close to falling off the cliff.

"Brandon!"

Janet saw what happened and screamed without thinking.

Her heart raced as she saw half of Brandon's car hanging off the cliff's edge. She couldn't take her eyes off the car.

The sea of clouds below the cliff seemed endless and dangerous.

The thought of the car falling off the cliff was too much for Janet to bear.

The bodyguards, frozen in shock, watched silently. They were too scared to make a sound, fearing it might cause the car to fall.

The other bodyguards, who were following Brandon, were equally terrified. They hurried towards the car, teetering on the cliff's brink.

Brandon, sitting in the driver's seat, felt dizzy after Jeremy's forceful hit.

But he quickly composed himself. With clear eyes and a steady hand, he pressed the accelerator, determined to save the car.

The engine roared loudly, echoing with a deep "Vrooom."

As Brandon carefully pressed the gas pedal, he opened his eyes wider and caught a glimpse of a familiar figure.

Janet's eyes, filled with terror, were locked on Brandon. Their gazes met in a moment of profound silence.

Worry filled Janet's eyes, while Brandon's face turned serious as he looked away from her.

He was aware of the danger, having instructed the bodyguards to stop Janet. But to his surprise, she had come anyway.

Janet repeatedly tried to reach Brandon, but the bodyguards held her back.

Nearby, Jeremy was losing control. His eyes almost glowed red, and a sinister smile crept across his face.

"Today is your end, Brandon! Ha-ha!" Jeremy laughed madly, gripping the steering wheel tightly, his smile growing more twisted.

After failing to push Brandon off the cliff, Jeremy accelerated, aiming to hit Brandon's car again.

"Mr. Larson! You must jump out now!"

"Yes, Mr. Larson, there's no time to lose!"

The bodyguards urged Brandon.

With Jeremy's car speeding towards him, everyone thought Brandon's only chance was to leave the car.

Tension rose as Jeremy's car bore down like a charging bull.

Brandon prepared to jump, but time was running out.

Suddenly, a heavy-duty motorcycle burst into the scene. Just as Jeremy's car neared Brandon's, the motorcycle rammed into Jeremy's car, sending it off course.

A loud "bang" echoed as Jeremy's car was pushed aside by the motorcycle.

The identity of the motorcycle rider remained
