

Chapter 996 The Third Visit

When Trevor stood in front of Sally's house again, he let out a sigh.

Sally's mother had refused to let him inside before, but this time, he finally had the chance to go inside.

As Sally opened the door, she poked her head inside and looked around. "It doesn't seem like my mom is home. Why don't you come in? I'll show you around."

Trevor nodded in response and followed Sally into the room.

The house was far from small, and the decorations were very distinctive. It had a simple, yet elegant vibe to it.

Inside the study, there were not only bookshelves full of all kinds of medical books but also many silver needles and strange jars on the table.

The anatomy of a human model stood in the corner of the study, and there was also a box full of herbs, causing the air to be filled with their smell.

"My mom and I have lived here for the past few years. If those men hadn't harassed us, we would have lived a good life," Sally said with a sigh.

Suddenly, the door opened, and a beautiful woman came in.

Her eyes widened as she looked at Trevor in astonishment.

She was Sally's mother.

"Mom?" Sally turned around. She didn't expect her mother to come back so soon. "Let me introduce you to him. This is Dragon, and I think you two—"

Before Sally could finish what she was about to say, the woman's expression contorted into pure anger as she shouted, "What the hell are you doing here? Get the fuck out! You're not welcome here! I've warned you not to get close to this man, Sally!"

The woman glared at Trevor as she tried to drive him away with a broom.

Trevor felt embarrassed. He didn't expect that Sally's mother was so determined to drive him away.

However, before things could escalate further, Sally quickly stood between Trevor and her mother. "Mom, it's not what you think! Dragon saved me today!"

While her mother was in a daze, Sally took the broom and told her how Trevor saved her.

After listening to what her daughter was saying, Sally's mother fell silent.

Her expression was complicated as she looked at Trevor. But after a while of silence, she eventually sighed.

She seemed helpless as she rubbed her temples and said, "Thank you for saving my daughter. Please sit down. I shouldn't have driven you away. Sally, please make some tea for us."

Noticing her mother's reaction, Sally agreed happily and ran to the kitchen.

As Trevor stared at Sally's disappearing figure, he went silent for a while before asking, "Did you want to talk to me alone? Is that why you sent Sally away?"

Sally's mother nodded. "You're quite smart."

She did send Sally away on purpose so she could have a private talk with Trevor.

"My name is Madison Scott, and I'm Sally's mother. I also know your name isn't Dragon. Your real name is Trevor Sanderson."

Trevor's eyes widened for a moment. He was stunned. He only showed the letter of recommendation, but he never expected that Madison would see through his true identity.

"You don't have to be surprised. I drove you away because I know your real identity. That letter of recommendation was given to the Sanderson family by my father. Unfortunately, he passed away three years ago."

Trevor lowered his head and whispered, "I'm sorry for your loss."

Madison sighed. "When he was still alive, he told me about the letter of recommendation. But your enemies are too powerful. I didn't want to be involved because I wanted to protect Sally. Do you understand what I mean?"

Trevor looked down. He felt a little helpless, but he nodded to show his understanding.

Madison sighed again. "I just didn't expect you to save Sally. I can't turn a blind eye to your kindness. Although it's risky, I'll fulfill my father's last wish and accept you as my disciple."

Trevor was stunned.

He thought that after Madison's father passed away, he wouldn't have any hope to be her father's disciple. However, he never expected that Madison would be willing to accept him as her disciple instead.

He had learned a lot from Pearce. If he could continue learning from Madison, it would definitely play a huge role in his revenge.

With that, Trevor agreed without any hesitation.

"By the way, when Pearce asked me to pay you a visit, he suggested that I should have my injuries treated."

Hearing that, Madison nodded and shifted her gaze to Trevor's body. After a while, she let out a sigh. "It must be hard for you. Your injuries are really serious. I'll ask Sally to be my assistant later and let you experience the mystery of the Scott family's medical skills."
