

Chapter 929 Get Lost!

It became clear that Kendrick was no match for Liam!

This demonstration once again altered everyone's perception of Liam.

Baxter, witnessing the scene, suddenly began trembling in fear and struggled to maintain his balance.

Liam turned to Julie and said, "I overheard something earlier. Baxter still owns shares in Pearl, right?"

Julie nodded.

Having received the confirmation, Liam directed a stern gaze at Baxter, his tone turning cold. "Sign the unconditional transfer of shares contract!"

Upon hearing this, Baxter's legs gave way, causing him to collapse to the ground with a thud.

Observing Liam's cold demeanor, he realized that he had no choice but to comply with Liam's demands. Otherwise, he wasn't going to make it out alive today!

Powerless, Baxter gritted his teeth and nodded enthusiastically in agreement.

Observing this, Julie asked Watkins to print the contract.

Shortly after, Watkins returned with the contract. And Baxter signed it right on the spot.

Liam received the contract, a smirk appearing on his lips as he addressed Baxter with a hint of mockery in his voice.

"Don't worry. I won't let you suffer in vain. Let me save your life. Your father, Newell, is carrying the AIDS virus. After you and Lenny had an intimate time with your dad yesterday, if you go to the hospital sooner, there might still be a chance for you to save yourself!"

Baxter stared blankly at Liam, his words failing to register. He didn't want to recall what had happened the day before, neither did he believe what Liam was saying.

Observing Baxter's lack of a response, Liam decided not to bother saying more on the matter. Changing the subject, he coldly said, "Take this as a lesson. If you dare to cause trouble again, you'll suffer the same fate as Kendrick! Now, get lost!"

Having been reprimanded by Liam, Baxter's face turned pale. Subconsciously glancing at Kendrick, who lay on the ground twitching, Baxter swallowed hard and nodded repeatedly, indicating that he understood the instruction.

Afterward, he cautiously approached and lifted Kendrick from the ground, quickly leaving the factory.

With the situation resolved, Watkins stepped forward and said to Liam, "Those people were from the Dark Gang. They are backed by Benedict and Gallagher, the father and son who currently control the Kingland Group. It appears they've intentionally set their sights on you and are stirring up trouble!"

Liam remained silent, prompting Watkins to continue, "I believe this was just their first probe. There'll definitely be more to follow. Why don't we move Pearl's company address to a different location? That way, we'll avoid future complications and be able to focus on its growth."

Watkins's proposal coincidentally echoed Julie's thoughts.

The fear of any conflict with the Kingland Group haunted her, and the lingering shadows of the past made the mere thought of it unbearable.

She took a step forward, delicately taking hold of Liam's arm, awaiting his reply.

However, Liam's expression remained composed, showing no signs of concern as he offered little in response.

He understood their worries. But he never regarded these enemies in Salem as a real threat. They were not even worth being considered as his opponents.

As a result, he reassured them, stating, "Don't worry. I'll arrange for someone to manage things here. As for the Kingland Group, I'll begin to deal with them by wiping out the Dark Gang. We'll see if that causes a change in their attitude!"

As Liam's words fell, a spark of intensity gleamed in his eyes, his entire aura surging in that instant.

His countenance exuded powerful strength.

This familiar scene left Watkins feeling slightly bewildered.

It appeared the Liam from the past had made a comeback!
