

Chapter 934 Ten Minutes At Most

Liam looked at Baldwin's self-righteous demeanor and laughed.

The idea that a mere district bureau chief could be so blatantly corrupt was a mockery to Salem.

Liam responded coolly, "Don't flatter yourself. Salem doesn't revolve around you. You're just a district bureau chief, yet you act as if you're untouchable?"

With a serious look, Liam called the chief of the Police Bureau and said, "Come to Nightingale Villa Area. Yes, to my house!"

Ethan, the chief of Salem police, had been appointed by Governor Bowen during the incident when Asher was taken. Liam had made his acquaintance with him back then.

Today, that connection came in handy.

Baldwin maintained his composed facade and replied with feigned integrity, "The law is the law! Liam, no matter who you call, it won't change your situation."

The officers beside Baldwin immediately supported him, saying, "Chief, why waste time with a criminal? If he resists, he'll face even more charges!"

One officer moved to handcuff Liam.

Seeing this, Liam's expression turned frosty.

He had intended to treat them with some respect.

But now, he saw no reason to!

With a disdainful snort, Liam swiftly disarmed the two officers.

In a swift motion, he snapped the handcuffs onto them instead!

The two officers lay on the floor, immobilized and bewildered, hurling insults at Liam.

Baldwin, furious at the scene, shouted, "Liam, what do you think you're doing? Attacking police officers is a grave offense!"

Yet, despite his stern words, the smug look in Baldwin's eyes revealed his true feelings.

Liam looked at Baldwin with a sneer and warned, "Call more officers if you must. Just remember, honesty is your best policy. Otherwise, your days in law enforcement will be numbered!"

Baldwin, taken aback, hadn't faced such defiance in all his years.

Fury consumed him, and with a chilling smile, he retorted, "Liam, if you're courting disaster, I'm happy to

He then called for backup, instructing every officer at the station to prepare for action.

After the call, he fixed his gaze on Liam and sneered, "You've called someone, right? Well, let's see whose connections are stronger. I have the entire district police force, all 132 officers, at my disposal!"

Julie's face fell upon hearing Baldwin's threat.

The idea of facing the entire police force worried her deeply, and she looked at Liam with eyes full of concern.

If the situation worsened, it could seriously affect Liam.

Yesenia, watching Liam remain calm throughout, couldn't help but feel relieved.

She suspected that Liam had a formidable background.

Thinking back on how she had always criticized and argued with Liam, Yesenia was filled with regret.

If only she hadn't been so intent on impressing the Williams family, she might not have faced her current health crisis with AIDS.

At that moment, Julie, cradling Asher, moved closer to Liam and whispered with concern, "Liam... Should we just drop this?"
