

Chapter 5827

At noon, when Charlie was sitting alone in a Sichuan restaurant in Chinatown eating,

Two Immigration Bureau police cars suddenly stopped in front of the hotel with their lights flashing silently.

Charlie saw everything but pretended not to care and continued to eat with his head down.

At this time, several police officers rushed in quickly,

Took a photo to compare the guests in the hotel,

And suddenly rushed to Charlie and asked loudly:

“Are you Yechen who smuggled himself to the United States from Malaysia?”

Charlie raised his head, shook his head innocently, and said,

"No..."

The policeman checked the photo again,

Then sneered and said to his colleagues next to him,

"That's him, take him away!"

As soon as he finished speaking, several policemen rushed towards him.

He came forward, twisted Charlie's arms to his back, and then cuffed him.

Charlie pretended to struggle for a few times.

When the other party made a gesture of touching the gun,

He quickly calmed down and stopped struggling.

The police then handcuffed him,

Took him out of the hotel and put him in the back of one of the police cars.

The police car roared all the way and headed straight to the immigration office.

At this time, the police officers did not know anything about Charlie.

They only knew that their superiors informed them that a Malaysian illegal immigrant,

Suspected of multiple thefts appeared in a restaurant in Chinatown,

And asked them to seize the opportunity to arrest him.

After several people took Charlie back to the immigration office,

They confiscated his Malaysian passport,

A worthless old mobile phone and more than two hundred US dollars in cash.

After checking the identity information in the passport,

The Immigration Bureau confirmed Yechen's identity as an illegal immigrant in Malaysia.

Afterward, Charlie was temporarily put into the detention room of the Immigration Bureau,

Waiting for the next step.

When Charlie came to the detention room, there were already at least twenty people in the small detention room.

These people had different skin colors, and each one looked very decadent and frightened.

Seeing Charlie come in, these people all looked at him.

Then, an Asian man with a scruffy beard asked him in English with a strong accent:

"Are you Japanese?"

Charlie shook his head:

"I am Malaysian, my parents are Chinese."

Another Asian-looking man with short hair immediately asked excitedly when he heard this:

"Brother, I am Chinese, we are half-compatriots!"

Charlie nodded and asked, "How did you get in?"

The short-haired man smiled and laughed at himself:

"How else could I have gotten in?"

"I was caught cheating. Have no identity, have no income,"

"People robbed me of everything on the road."

"I didn't have a place to stay when I came to the United States."

"I set up a tent in the park every day, and the tent was stolen too."

"I wanted to steal a bicycle to deliver food, but I was caught by the police and now I am here."

Charlie frowned: "You came in through the wires."

"Logically, you should go to Los Angeles,"

"Which is closer to Mexico. Why did you come to New York?"

The short-haired man patted his thigh:

"Brother, you know the stuff too!"

"Did you also come in through a wire?"

Charlie shook his head: "I came by boat."

The short-haired man was a little disappointed and sighed:

"It's better for you to take the boat."

"You boarded the boat from your hometown and wandered around for a few months."

"Unlike us who are walking the line, this journey has been so damn hard."

"It's not an exaggeration to say, buddy, it's not an exaggeration to say that I will lose my skin even if I don't die."

At this time, someone in the crowd muttered:

"It's a waste to take a boat, walking the line."

"At least you have to stand on the ground the whole time."

"You may have to swim the last kilometer of the boat."

"There were more than 60 people on the boat, and only half of them made it ashore."

"The rest don't know where the waves took them."

When the short-haired man heard this, shrank his neck and sighed:

"Anyway, I really regret it."

"This place is not a fcking paradise on earth."

"It is simply a purgatory on earth."

"The liar agent told me before I came that I would just wash dishes when I arrive here."

"Just by doing that, I can earn seven to eight thousand dollars a month."

"When I came here, in the Chinese restaurant,"

"Eight people rush to wash a bowl."

After that, he said to Charlie: "Brother, didn't you ask me why I didn't go to Los Angeles?"

"In fact, it was Los Angeles that I first went to."

"After arriving from Mexico, a large group of us rushed to Los Angeles first."

"After we arrived, we discovered that there were no jobs with such high wages."

"All the agencies were full. I slept on the street there for more than ten days."

"I could only eat some relief food every day. The relief food was barely enough to make me one-third full."

"Then I slept on the street. A guy I met said the competition in Los Angeles is so dmn fierce,"

"Why not come to New York and try your luck."

Charlie asked curiously: "It's so far from the west coast to the east coast,"

"How did you get here?"

The short-haired man chuckled: "I came by train. , it's so dmn far away,"

"Thanks to following a few homeless Americans,"

"They ran around on the train all day long,"

"So we followed all the way to New York, and our hands were all empty;"

"After coming to New York, I really lamented how prosperous New York is."

"In such a big city, there is always a place for me to stay, right?"

"Then I thought about finding a job in Chinatown, and I found a job,"

"Delivering food from a Chinese restaurant."

"But I didn't have a car, so I couldn't deliver it on my legs,"

"So I tried stealing a bicycle, and I got arrested."

Charlie smiled slightly and said, "Then what are your plans next?"

The short-haired man said melancholy: "How do I know?"

"It's not worth being imprisoned for what I've done."

"Don't you know that prisons are almost overcrowded?"

"If illegal immigrants commit petty theft, they will most likely be imprisoned for a few days."

"I am released. I originally thought they could send me back,"

"But it turns out they are too lazy to take care of it now."

"After I am released, I have to sleep on the street..."

"I wish I had known that this place was such a sgumbag."

"I would have been killed. I won't come either."
