

Ex-Wife 1599

Chapter 1599

It was clear that Stefan didn't want to bring it up.

He fell out with Xavier because of Renee back then, but he couldn't blame Xavier for fancying such a thought because Stefan was different back then. He refused to admit that he cared about Renee.

Xavier had felt sorry for Renee for having to suffer so much by being with Stefan, so he had challenged Stefan to a fair competition. The incident had been put aside and forgotten ages ago, and neither Stefan nor Xavier ever mentioned it. It was almost as if it had never happened.

"But it's not the time to talk about love affairs now..."

Owen continued seriously, "Even after all this searching, there's no one who resembles Ms. Everheart more than Shirley, so... maybe her eyes will suit Ms. Everheart best."

"What?" Xavier yelled, looking at Owen as if he was crazy. "Shouldn't we look at the compatibility first?"

Aren't the requirements very strict? How can you come to such a conclusion just because they look alike? Isn't that too rash?"

"No, it's based on medical facts. If their eyes look alike, their external compatibility should be high, which will cause less resistance. That's why we've been screening for such a long time. First, we need to pick those who are around the same age as Ms. Everheart, plus, they should resemble her in terms of looks and temperament. There will be a higher chance of similarity of their genes and cells if they look alike, " Owen explained patiently, but the others just looked at him in confusion.

"Although it sounds nonsensical, you're the famous doctor here. Whatever you say should be right."

Stefan chose to believe Owen, and suggested, "We'll know if it's a match once she's here for the test."

"Yeah." Owen nodded.

"Yes, you're right." Leia refused to let go of such an opportunity and said eagerly, "Let's not waste time.

We should ask her to come in for the test."

The three of them had reached an agreement, but Xavier had yet to say anything.

"This all sounds crazy. Shouldn't we take more time to think it through?" Xavier frowned deeply, looking unusually solemn. Calmly, he added, "Plus, shouldn't they be doing this voluntarily? Maybe she doesn't want to do the test."

Leia looked at Xavier in annoyance and scoffed, "Are you scared?"

"What would I be scared of?"

"You're afraid that her eyes would suit Ren best after the test. You won't know what to do then, right?"

Leia's eyes narrowed, knowing she had hit the nail on the head.

"No, it's not that. Even if it's a match, we still need her approval," Xavier protested weakly.

"No, you're the only one who can make Shirley give up her eyes willingly if she's compatible... so it's obvious you just don't want to do it," Leia said bluntly.
