

Chapter 955 Carsen's Suggestion

Julie's words resonated with everyone's concerns. When she made her promise, a wave of relief washed over the guests.

Suddenly, applause erupted in the room.

Liam, feeling satisfied, addressed the crowd, "Let's call it a day! I won't hold any grudges for past actions. Soon, I'll host a business meeting. Those interested are welcome to join!"

His announcement was met with eager flattery from the guests.

Who would want to miss a meeting hosted by the general?

One by one, they scrambled to confirm their attendance.

As the banquet drew to a close, the guests began to depart, leaving only Liam's closest associates behind. Among them were Bowen and Tristan.

At that moment, Tristan dragged Nolan to the front and sternly ordered him to kneel.

"Kneel! Apologize to General Hoffman!" he commanded.

Nolan, understanding Tristan's intentions, promptly knelt before Liam. "General Hoffman, I apologize for my earlier actions. I'm truly sorry!"

Liam's frown deepened as he looked at Nolan, remaining silent.

He had extended courtesy to Tristan by not pursuing legal action against Nolan.

He held back because Nolan hadn't committed any serious offense.

However, he wasn't inclined to easily forgive him for a mere verbal apology.

Tristan, perceiving Liam's stance, quickly made a significant offer.

"General Hoffman, I propose merging the Red Murray Group into Pearl. We'll only take a 10% share and fully support Mrs. Hoffman in managing the company," he said, showing his commitment.

Liam glanced at Julie, curious about her reaction.

Julie, caught off-guard, remained silent.

Tristan and Nolan exchanged glances of apprehension, fearing Liam's rejection to forgive Nolan.

It was then that Carsen stepped forward with a suggestion. "I think we can forgive the Murray family. Merging Red Murray Group into Pearl could be beneficial for us."

Liam was slightly taken aback by Carsen's intervention.

He knew Carsen had been involved with the Murray family, reaping some benefits from their relationship.

Previously, Carsen had informed Liam about his favorable treatment by the Murrays.

Understanding his straightforward nature, Liam worried Carsen might be unwittingly manipulated by them.

The Murray family's methods did not sit well with him, and he would not tolerate any deception.

Noticing Liam's silence, Carsen quickly added, "I assure you, I'm not compromised. I said that because Tristan is going to be my father-in-law. It's only natural that I advocate for him."
