

Chapter 959 I Will Make Amends

Driven by Julie's firm stance, Liam refrained from insisting on a general check-up for the time being.

After all, Julie seemed perfectly healthy, and Liam was convinced that there was indeed nothing amiss with her.

Consequently, they both returned to Nightingale Villa Area, embarking on the task of packing their belongings, in anticipation of relocating to Sky Orchid Garden the following day.

The bustling sounds of their preparations inevitably drew the curiosity of Yesenia.

Puzzled, she inquired, "Julie, what's all this activity about?"

Julie, with her usual candor, revealed their plans.

"We're moving to Sky Orchid Garden tomorrow."

Yesenia's face registered utter astonishment at this revelation.

"Sky Orchid Garden? That's one of the most prestigious estates in the area! Julie, how on earth did you manage the finances for such a place?"

As she spoke, her gaze instinctively shifted to Liam, piecing together that he must have been behind this.

Julie clarified, "Oh, we haven't purchased it. The villa was a generous gift from Tristan!"

This disclosure left Yesenia completely flabbergasted.

Tristan?

It seemed almost implausible.

Yet, as she observed Julie's earnest expression, Yesenia recognized the truth in her words, her expression morphing into one of deep astonishment.

Julie then proceeded to narrate the events that had transpired at the recent banquet.

"Furthermore, there's a significant business development. The Red Murray Group and Kingland Group will merge with Pearl. This positions Pearl as the most preeminent company in Salem. And Tristan has pledged the full support of his family to Pearl, asking for only a 10% share in return."

Yesenia stood there, overwhelmed by the magnitude of these revelations.

The turn of events at the banquet had propelled Pearl to astounding heights, a development Yesenia hadn't anticipated.

However, her reaction was not one of joy for Julie's success. Instead, she was overcome with emotion and began to weep.

Julie, concerned, quickly approached her. "Mom, what's the matter?"

Yesenia, amidst her tears, exclaimed, "Oh my God! Why now, after I've been diagnosed with AIDS, do I see such hope? How could I have been so stupid before? Why did I ever think of driving away Liam, who's such a wonderful son-in-law?"

Seeing Yesenia in such distress, Julie tried to console her. "Mom, don't worry. Asher and I will be there for you. Don't be sad."

But Julie's attempts to comfort her mother seemed futile. Yesenia continued to weep.

At a loss, Julie looked to Liam for help.

Liam observed Yesenia, inwardly skeptical of her display of emotion, suspecting it to be an act.

Nonetheless, he felt obligated to fulfill a promise he had made earlier. "I'll arrange for the top specialist from Beluga Hospital to treat you. If you lead a good life from now on and refrain from wrongdoing, you'll enjoy a life of comfort and wealth. And remember, you need to behave like a good grandmother to Asher. If not, I won't hesitate to retract my generosity."

Upon hearing Liam's words, Yesenia's demeanor shifted dramatically. Smile replaced her tears, and she nodded vigorously in agreement.

Gone was her previous arrogance and domineering attitude. She appeared entirely submissive to Liam now.

Yesenia said in a serious tone, "I will make amends for my past mistakes."
