

Chapter 159

"What are you saying? I will go and ask for forgiveness from him? Have you lost your mind, Ella?" Alpha Neil spoke out.

"Yes, you will. I can't lose my son. For the first time, he disclosed to me how he felt all these years. I can't let him go after breaking our relationship. I won't get my son back if he leaves this time." Ella yelled at her husband.

She was crying. She did not take Ryan's warning to heart. All she felt was what Ryan had told her about himself. She could not listen to her son's bitter words, so she left his room and came to her husband to convince him.

She realized that all of her life she was so busy caring for her elder son that she ignored her other child. She should have cared for them equally. He was a child at that time. If she and Neil had taken care of him properly, his mind would not have been filled with hatred for them.

"I won't go to him. He should come to me. I am his father; he is not my father."

Ella stared at her arrogant husband. She felt that her son went on with his father. Both of them were egoistic people.

"Do whatever you two want. Do me a favor. Just kill me. I can't take all of this mentally anymore. I am tired of my life and broken relationships." Ella said angrily and walked to the door.

When she left the room, she saw Allison standing out of the room.

Allison lowered her head and let her go. Ella wiped her tears and walked away from there.

Allison turned her head and glanced at Ella's back. She could see how painful the situation was for a mother.

She came here to talk with Alpha Neil about the wedding. However, the heat of the room was not cool at all.

She overheard what Ella was saying to Alpha Neil.

"Allison?"

Alpha Neil's eyes fell on Allison when she was staring at Ella's back.

Hearing Alpha Neil's voice, Allison turned around and looked inside the room.

"Come here, my child." Alpha Neil said to her.

Allison entered the room and stood in front of him.

"I came here to talk, Uncle."

"Yeah, you wanted to talk about something."

Allison nodded her head. She was nervous about how she would talk to him. She had been so sure she would tell him everything, but now she was distressed.

Alpha Neil thought that Allison was silent because she heard Ella.

He sighed and said, "My child, I know you heard us."

Allison looked at him and said,

"I didn't want to. It's just that I came here to talk to you."

"What are your thoughts about it?"

Allison did not know what she should reply. She averted his gaze and replied,

"I think he needs his parents. He is really lonely in his life. How can a person stay away from his parents when they are still alive?"

Alpha Neil shook his head. "Dear, did I ever tell him to leave? It was always his decision. He always felt jealous of Ethan."

Allison did not like it. She raised her head and said,

"He never felt jealous of Ethan, Uncle. He only wanted his parents to treat him the way they treated Ethan. I am sorry, but I think you have misconceptions. You never understood your son."

Alpha Neil was taken aback by her remarks. "He is an impolite man. I always tried to make him a polite person by scolding him. He thought I was his enemy."

Allison smiled at him sadly. "Uncle, love can sometimes accomplish what rigid demeanor can not."

"You mean I was harsh on him?" He frowned and asked.

Allison felt that she should not be afraid of anyone. She would have to take a stand for Ryan. She did not have to show it to Ryan how she felt for him. But, unbeknownst to him, she could make his father understand the truth.

She took a deep breath and replied,

"I apologize if you feel I am impolite, but I have always observed you reacting differently with him. Your behavior toward Ethan was far better than how you behaved with Ryan. Of course, a boy whose father never took him for a run would believe his father did not love him."

Alpha Neil's expression changed.

He suddenly remembered Glen's birthday night. He had witnessed her defend Ryan as he was going to attack him in rage. They appeared to be very close to each other.

"How do you know about it? Did he tell you all of these?" He asked.

She nodded her head. She looked emotional, which did not go unnoticed by Alpha Neil. Her face was sorrow and sorrowful for the first time in two years.

As if she was carrying sorrow in her heart. Otherwise, no one could have read her for all these years.

"He did. He shared his pain with me once. But I am upset that you could never understand his pain. He was a child who was raised by his parents yet lived alone. Have you ever considered why he never contacted you? It's because he thought you all didn't like him. You failed to express your feelings for him."

She noticed his look. She could see his pain in his eyes. He was, nonetheless, a strict man. He did not want to show his inner feelings to anyone.

"I always wanted good for him. He even kept everything about himself hidden from us."

"You are the one who constantly mocks him for power and ability. He was a formidable Alpha, yet he made you believe he was useless. He was used to your behavior. He only showed you how you thought about him."

He shifted his gaze away from her. "I'm done talking about him, Allison. Let's wrap this up. I admire how powerful he has become. I don't want anything from him. If he still thinks we are careless, then let him be. I have nothing to do."

Allison closed her eyes, and tears fell on her cheeks as she could not stop herself.

"You are right. You have nothing to do now." She grumbled and turned to leave, but stopped when she heard him again.

"I had planned his birthday two years ago to extend my hand to him. But what did he do? He insulted me and left the pack without any reason."

Allison recalled that night, which was a nightmare for her.

"Though it was his birthday, you celebrated Ethan's wedding announcement. You could not give him one night to think that his father cared for him."

"Do you think I am not a good father?"

Allison was silent for some time, then she wiped her eyes and turned to him.

"For Ethan, you are the best father in the world, but for Ryan, you are not. You never asked him what he wanted. You never gave him preference in anything."

She could see how broken he was looking at that moment after hearing her words.

She smiled at him sadly and said,

"Maybe you have won many packs in life but you have lost your child."
