

Chapter 1795 How Many Teachers Does Jeremy Ha...

Janet and Brandon shared a silent look of joy, overwhelmed with emotion. Janet's excitement was palpable, her eyes fixed on Brandon, itching to meet Jeremy's teacher immediately.

Brandon ended the call silently, swiftly gathered Janet and his coat, and they hurried to the hospital.

Throughout the drive, Janet mulled over her earlier encounter with the old man, convinced his favorable impression of her led to this swift appointment.

Indeed, experts always had their unique personalities.

At Frank's hospital, Brandon quickly escorted Janet in. Yet, as they entered the waiting area, Janet's smile vanished, sensing something was amiss.

"What's the matter?" Brandon asked, sensing her discomfort.

Before Janet could reply, they were greeted by Frank, who introduced a sophisticated woman in a chic white dress, saying, "Meet Dr. Wren Black, Jeremy's teacher."

He then confided to Brandon, "Dr. Black has successfully treated many affected by Jeremy's poison. She's a respected figure in our field."

Upon hearing this, Brandon's demeanor softened, and he greeted Wren politely.

However, Janet felt bewildered.

What was going on?

The old man said he was Jeremy's teacher, and now this lovely lady claimed to be Jeremy's master, too. How many teachers did Jeremy have?

Seeing the lady with her long curly hair and timeless beauty, Janet couldn't wrap her head around the idea that she was Jeremy's teacher. For some reason, Janet felt more drawn to the messy old man at the hotel, despite not having a specific reason why, just a gut feeling.

Wren turned to Janet, expressing, "Mr. and Mrs. Larson, it's a pleasure. I'm Wren Black, here to assist Mrs. Larson. I regret the distress Jeremy caused you."

Janet maintained a cautious demeanor, briefly discussing her medical issues while her thoughts lingered on the old man they had met earlier.

The day's events felt surreal, leaving her in a state of confusion.

Once Wren grasped Janet's health condition, she professionally outlined the treatment plan, gradually calming Brandon's nerves.

Frank elaborated, "After your last check-up, I've been reaching out to my connections to find a specialist for your treatment. One of my former classmates suggested Dr. Black. I contacted her, not expecting an immediate response. Surprisingly, she came to Barnes immediately for you. When I met her, I discovered Jeremy was her student, and she's been cleaning up his mess for years."

Still, Janet felt unsettled, questioning if her discomfort towards Wren was unwarranted.

"Have you ever heard about Jeremy's teacher before this? It's not like we're just taking her at her word, are we?" Janet asked.
