

Married At First Sight Chapter 3293

Married At First Sight Chapter 3293-Camryn said, "It's better to work for our company. You also own a share of the company. Use your holidays to work and accumulate some work experience. After you graduate, if you don't plan to continue your studies, start at the grassroots level. It's good to experience the hardship of work early on."

The York Corporation's requirements were extremely high. Even if the other young masters of the York family are new to society, they cannot go directly to work at the York Corporation's headquarters.

Camryn didn't want Trenton to use Callum's identity to gain access to the York Corporation. That would be criticized by others, and it would be unfair to many people. There is no justice in this world.

She still let Trenton go to work at Newman's Enterprise; after all, Trenton also had a share in Newman's Enterprise.

Trenton said, "Isn't the New Year not far away? What if I can't book a high-speed rail ticket by then?"

Callum acted as if he wanted to keep Trenton in Wiltspoon. In his heart, he had been looking forward to Trenton going to work at Newman's Enterprise. This way, before the new year, he and Camryn could still enjoy their own world.

Camryn said, "Trenton, you can grab high-speed rail tickets in advance, or you can book air tickets. As long as you make arrangements in advance, are you still worried about not being able to come back? If you can't buy a ticket, I will arrange for someone to pick you up."

"Sister, I'll listen to you. Talk to Brother Dal and arrange a job for me. Don't let anyone know that I'm your biological brother. Just say that I'm a college student looking for a temporary job during the winter break. I can work for a month to earn some money for the new year.

Many of my classmates are not in a hurry to go home to celebrate the New Year. They will find temporary jobs outside for a while, earning some money before going back to celebrate the New Year. Normally, they will use all available time to make money. I occasionally work part-time with him. I don't make much money, but it is also a life experience."

He was a young man who was born with a silver spoon in his mouth and had never worried about money. In the past, when his parents were still free, they sent him to a closed school early, but they never treated him badly in terms of material life. He had a lot of pocket money.

Even though his parents were in jail, Camryn never stopped paying his card, so he never lacked money. After he became an adult, he had more money at his disposal. Camryn said that he was an adult and had to learn to take care of his own property.

However, through his own efforts, hard work, and the money he earned—even if he could only earn a few dozen dollars a day—he was very happy, and he felt particularly happy spending that money.

“It’s good that you think this way. I also tried every possible way to make money when I was in college.” Callum strongly supported Trenton’s use of his free time to make money.

When the brothers were in college, they could make money by working with other classmates. Even before they graduated, they all established their own small companies, and step by step, they have made the company bigger and stronger today.

Camryn didn’t object to her brother using his free time to make money. She had heard that many people would find part-time jobs while in college.

Some people don’t need money from their families after they go to college. They can earn enough to cover their own tuition and pocket money. Some of the more capable individuals even have money to give back home.

Because she had been blind for ten years, she had no chance to go to college or experience college life.

Although she had regained her sight, she had to be careful to protect her eyes and not overuse them. She was busy with work and had no time to review her high school knowledge. When she has time in the future, she wants to study again and work hard to get a college diploma.

Callum had a high level of education, and Camryn didn’t want to be too far away from him. Even if Callum didn’t dislike her,

She also wanted to shorten the gap between them and walk side by side with him.

Camryn said, “You can take a part-time job. I won’t stop you, but please don’t neglect your studies or work too hard. Just think of your part-time job as a way to experience life.”

Married At First Sight Chapter 3294-Trenton said, “Sister, I know. I have been resting at home for the past two days. I went to see my parents and look for my second sister. I haven’t contacted her recently. She said she wanted to do some surgery last time. I don’t know what happened to her. When I find her and make sure she is okay, I will go to work and come back after the annual vacation. Sister, you do not need to send someone to pick me up. I can just grab the tickets in advance.”

Trenton felt that he was an adult and could take care of himself when he went out. There was no need for Camryn to always take care of him.

Camryn hummed, “Except for the company’s executives who know who you are, ordinary employees have no impression of you. If you don’t reveal your identity, no one will know. Work hard, talk less, work more, and pay attention. Watch what others do and learn.”

“Okay.”

Trenton, an executive, became acquainted with the company. Trenton, after all, was the only son of his parents, who had transferred all the remaining property to his name following their fine.

He also held a share in the company. However, he was still studying and generally didn’t care about the company, so ordinary employees in the company were unaware of his presence.

He began as an ordinary person and worked as an errand boy. Even at a low level, he could understand the situation of grassroots employees.

Camryn had no objection.

Trenton had returned from winter vacation and must be visiting the prison. When she couldn’t reach Carrie, she requested others to search for her, leaving Trenton in solitude.

After dinner, Callum said to Camryn, “Wifey, you just came back, and you are tired. Go upstairs, take a hot bath, and have a good rest.”

Camryn said, “I just finished eating and can’t sleep. Please go out for a walk with me to eat.”

“Okay.” After putting away the dishes, Callum accompanied his beloved wife out of the main room.

Trenton wisely chose not to follow them out, showing no signs of change.

When he came back this time, he saw that Camryn had gained some weight and looked very good. He knew that Callum took good care of her.

He originally wanted to discuss their wedding with Callum, but after thinking about it again, he felt there was no rush. In fact, Callum was more anxious than him. If he couldn't wait any longer, he'd take the initiative to mention it to him and Evelyn.

He and Evelyn were the natal family that Camryn valued, so it was natural to discuss the wedding with them.

Callum held Camryn's hand and asked warmly, "Is it cold? The temperature has dropped today. The rain has stopped now. It felt extremely cold while it was still raining."

Camryn said, "It's colder at the company, and it can snow. I can adapt to it there. Now that I'm back in Wiltspoon, it's incomparably colder."

Callum smiled, held her hand up, kissed the back of her hand, and said affectionately, "I missed you these past few days when you were not at home, and I almost went crazy thinking about you."

Camryn's pretty face blushed slightly. "I miss you too."

"Really? Every day, I take the initiative to send you messages, phone calls, and video chats. It's been a few days, and I feel like it's been a few years. Wifey, it feels like a year when you're not with me. I've experienced what it means to not see each other for one day, which is like three autumns apart. The pain of missing each other is too unbearable."