

Married At First Sight

Married At First Sight Chapter 3299-Carrie patted her face and said, “I don’t wear makeup. Oh, I don’t even have money to buy cosmetics now.”

She was still in confinement, and even though her confinement sister-in-law prepared delicious food for her every day, her body had not recovered after only a few days.

Trenton looked at Carrie for a moment and said, “Second sister, you’re still young, only in your early twenties. You don’t need makeup, and you’re naturally beautiful and very good-looking.”

Carrie: “...”

Trenton was probably straight.

No matter how young Carrie was, she still needed cosmetics and skin care products.

In the past, when her parents were still around, her skin care products were all the most expensive brands.

She wasn’t used to it, even if she didn’t use it for a day.

“Second sister, have you eaten?” Trenton asked.

“Not yet. How can I have money to eat? Forget it if I starve to death. Anyway, I don’t have parents to support me anymore, and my brother is looking for outsiders.” Carrie said, deliberately blocking her breath.

“Second sister, that is not an outsider; that is our eldest sister, who was born to the same mother as us.” Trenton said helplessly, “Can’t you coexist peacefully with the eldest sister? You have been bullying the eldest sister since childhood. How has the eldest sister been bullied by you? You don’t know; are you embarrassed to blame the eldest sister like this now?”

If the eldest sister was as carefree and hateful as you, you would probably have died a long time ago. Just based on what you did to the eldest sister in the past, not to mention my eldest sister, even my eldest brother-in-law can take off your skin and vent your anger on behalf of the eldest sister.”

In his eyes, it was always Carrie who bullied Camryn.

Even if there is hatred, Camryn should hate Carrie, and conversely, Carrie should hate Camryn.

Carrie’s face turned pale. She suddenly regretted asking Trenton out to meet him.

“Trenton, what kind of ecstasy soup did that blind woman give you? Since you were a child, you have been helping her. Understand that I am your biological sister, who has the same father and mother! I’m so angry. Every time I meet or talk to you on the phone, you are always helping that blind woman, scolding me, and saying something wrong to me. Yes, I have nothing now—no money, no power, not even a place to live. Should I still be grateful to Camryn for not driving me to death?

“She is rich, powerful, and married and has a good husband, and you fawn over her. How much benefit does she give you? You fool, she sold you, and you still count the money for her.”

As Carrie spoke, she felt aggrieved and started to cry.

She was also really aggrieved. Even if she had bullied Camryn, now that she was so miserable, Trenton didn’t turn to her, but to the blind woman, Camryn.

Couldn’t she feel aggrieved?

Originally the daughter of a wealthy family whom her parents took care of in the palm of her hand, she got wind and rain whenever she wanted. Now, she has become the mistress of a middle-aged uncle, being played by others and used as a pawn. If she’s pregnant, she can’t keep the baby.

Only those who have experienced the pain of aborting a child know how painful it is. Even if she hasn’t developed feelings for that child yet, it’s still her first child.

Before it even took shape, she was forced to give up her child's life.

Wasn't she wrong?

Wasn't it because of Camryn and Serenity that they ended up like this?

Why was her life so miserable, but they were so happy?
