

Chapter 1051 Meeting Maureen

In Pleyson, Maureen remained unaware of the events surrounding Liam.

Meanwhile, within the confines of Maureen's residence, two unfamiliar figures stealthily traversed its halls.

Skillfully evading the vigilant guards, they infiltrated the premises undetected.

Liam signaled for Laura to proceed with caution as they advanced. Despite their efforts to remain discreet, they were soon detected by Maureen, partially because Liam didn't try hard to hide his aura.

Sensing the intruders approaching her room, Maureen, in the midst of her cultivation, abruptly furrowed her brow. Her serene expression shifted to one of intense concentration, a glimmer of murderous intent flickering in her eyes.

Liam recognized the danger of their situation and opted to abandon stealth, swiftly stepping forward to reveal his identity.

"Wait! I'm Liam Hoffman!" he declared.

Upon seeing Liam, Maureen's initial hostility dissipated instantly, replaced by genuine surprise.

Clearly taken aback by Liam's unexpected visit, Maureen swiftly invited both Liam and Laura into her room, her curiosity piqued.

"Liam? What brings you here?" she inquired.

Liam's expression grew solemn as he decided to confide in Maureen, not withholding any details of his predicament.

"I've become a target of Adamson's, and there have been developments in the Salvation Society that prevent my return to Genesis Island. Julie is currently held captive by the Duncan family under Adamson's control. I've come to you seeking assistance. With your help, I hope to infiltrate the Saint Society and find a way to rescue her."

As Liam disclosed Julie's plight in the Duncan family's custody, Maureen's expression shifted to one of immediate concern. Her gaze bore into Liam, her voice laced with reproach.

"Why did you expose Julie to such danger without sufficient strength to protect her? Look at what has happened to her because of you!" she said.

Liam was rendered speechless by Maureen's pointed criticism, knowing all too well the truth in her words.

Turning her attention to Laura, Maureen's anger flared at the sight of her. With a sneer, she said, "You truly are a paragon of loyalty to Julie! Not long after her misfortune, you've already found yourself another pretty face to cling to, Liam. I didn't expect you'd have the time for such pursuits!"

Stung by Maureen's biting remarks, Laura retorted under her breath, her patience wearing thin. "What nonsense are you spouting? I'm simply a friend of Liam's. Spare me your accusations! And what's with your appearance? Can't you show your true self?"

Sensing the escalating tension between Maureen and Laura, Liam intervened swiftly, his voice imbued with sincerity as he said, "Please, don't worry. I promise to bring Julie back safely. If anything were to happen to her in the Duncan family's hands, I wouldn't be able to forgive myself."

Maureen detected the genuine resolve in Liam's words, and after a moment of contemplation, she nodded reluctantly.

Trusting Julie's judgment implicitly, Maureen relented and said, "Follow me."

Leading them to a secluded chamber, which also served as her cultivation area, Maureen ensured they were free from prying ears before divulging crucial information on infiltrating the Saint Society. She outlined their course of action and the pitfalls they must avoid.