

Chapter 1067 The Butler's Suggestion

Cillian watched his son Garrett walk away, feeling disappointed, and sighed.

If Garrett hadn't been his only child, Cillian could have cut ties with him long ago.

The family butler noticed Cillian's expression and quickly tried to comfort him. "Mr. Glyn, please, don't be upset. The young master has plenty of time ahead. Many opportunities await. Perhaps he'll come to understand you eventually."

Cillian didn't feel any better after hearing this. He said seriously, "I'm worried about what lies ahead for Garrett. These are unstable times. Once other powers are eliminated, a fierce internal conflict within the Saint Society is bound to happen! I might not even be safe then. If anything happens to me during these chaotic times, Garrett will be in trouble!"

The butler paused to think before suggesting, "Master, why not consider sending the young master to the maritime secret realm that's opening soon? It might be a beneficial experience for him."

Cillian furrowed his brow at the suggestion. The idea wasn't new to him. His main worry was that Garrett, given his current strength, might perish in the perilous

Noticing Cillian's reluctance, the butler continued confidently, "Mr. Glyn, much of the young master's current situation stems from your overprotectiveness. Maybe it's time to let him face some challenges on his own."

Following a lengthy silence, Cillian, touched by the butler's earnest words, nodded in agreement.

Later, Cillian paid a visit to Garrett in the hospital.

He approached Garrett's doctor and inquired, "Doctor, how is my son doing?"

As the doctor took off his gloves, he told Cillian, "Your son has suffered kidney damage, and he'll need to avoid sexual activity for some time to prevent any permanent issues. Other than that, he just needs some rest."

Garrett's expression turned grim when he heard the news.

Losing his pleasures was worse than death to him!

He wanted to lash out but managed to hold back in front of Cillian, giving a reluctant nod of agreement.

Cillian, knowing his son's nature well, said solemnly, "Garrett, in three days, you'll be part of the team I'm sending to the maritime secret realm."

To Cillian's surprise, this news actually pleased

Garrett.

Garrett had been eager for a chance to explore, and now, his father was offering him this opportunity to join the maritime secret realm!

Garrett wasn't worried about the dangers of the secret realm, confident that his status as Cillian's son would keep him safe.

With that in mind, Garrett responded, "Father, I'm fine with joining the maritime secret realm. However, I'd like to take Shayla with me."

Cillian's face grew stern as he replied, "Didn't you hear what the doctor just told us? Garrett, what are you thinking? Is that the only thing on your mind?"

Defending himself from his father's reprimands, Garrett said, "Dad, don't worry. I just want to use this chance to get back at her! After all, Shayla means nothing to our family. Let her be my pawn! I assure you she won't survive the maritime secret realm."

Cillian, looking stern, walked away without saying another word.

Seeing his father's silent agreement, Garrett's excitement intensified. He promptly called over one of his subordinates and said, "Go and get me a dog leash!"

The subordinate, confused, stood frozen, unsure why Garrett would suddenly need a dog leash.

Garrett, his eyes fierce, commanded sharply, "Just do as I told you! Go! If you delay any longer, I'll kill you!"
