

Chapter 1069 Liam's Talent

Liam's abilities kept getting stronger, surprising Mr. Jenkins with how amazingly talented he was becoming.

Mr. Jenkins had a feeling Liam might soon surpass him and maybe even their master someday.

But he didn't feel jealous; he was happy for Liam.

Then, he showed Liam how to enhance his elemental powers even more.

"Try using levitation on me," Mr. Jenkins suggested.

Liam nodded, giving it a try.

It worked impressively.

Mr. Jenkins floated gracefully, but Liam's grip on the levitation skill was shaky, so he ended up floating upwards alongside Mr. Jenkins.

Unfazed, Liam kept practicing until he got really good at using this skill.

With a surprised look, Liam said, "Since I can levitate, that means I could fly for a short time."

The idea of flying on his own excited Liam.

Mr. Jenkins grinned and asked, "Anything else you've figured out?"

Liam, quick to understand, thought for a moment before answering, "I think elemental powers can do more than we realize. It's about how we keep improving them."

Mr. Jenkins nodded with a smile, happy to see that Liam had both skill and a sharp understanding.

Later, Liam tried using his light element.

But despite thinking hard, he struggled to see its purpose.

Seeing Liam puzzled, Mr. Jenkins advised, "Sometimes, an element's usefulness isn't obvious at first."

Liam frowned, not quite getting it.

Mr. Jenkins didn't explain further but encouraged him, "You've already mastered two abilities, which is impressive. Take some time to rest. When it's the perfect moment, everything will fit together just right. Time to go back up the mountain and get ready. We'll head to the maritime secret realm soon."

Remembering the first day of the maritime secret realm, Liam gathered his strength and left the mountain's base with Mr. Jenkins.

At the plaza halfway up Mount Moria, more than a dozen people had already gathered, all excited to begin the journey after a short ceremony.

In the crowd, Laura, who had been waiting, waved for Liam to join her.

She saw the amazing things that happened when Liam had his breakthrough, and she knew that the bright light over Mount Moria came from Liam's new powers.

As Liam came closer, Laura whispered excitedly, "Wow, look at you! Your breakthrough made such a big impact!"

She wished she could progress as fast as Liam, feeling a bit down.

How much longer until she had her own breakthrough?

Liam saw Laura's envy and teasingly tapped her forehead with a chuckle. "Are you jealous of me? No worries; you'll catch up soon."

Laura felt a mix of emotions at his touch, but she kept her cool and said, "Say whatever you want to say. No need to tap my head."

Confidently, Laura added, "You better recognize my talent. Someday, I'll become a strong leader in my own way! And when that day comes, you'll be working under me!"

At that moment, Laura felt a rough arm around her waist.

Frowning, she moved away quickly and demanded, "Who's there?"