Chapter 1176 Move Out

"It's you!"

Aldwin's eyes widened as he pointed at Trevor. He almost jumped out of his seat in disbelief and fright.

Then he realized he was in Corden, the territory of the Murray family. Trevor couldn't hurt him around here.

Aldwin regained composure at once and darted a deathly glare at Trevor.

He told Ken, "Dad, it's him! The bastard who hit me last night! We have to teach him a lesson!"

"Oh?" Ken raised an eyebrow and sized Trevor up.

Bess' face lit up when she saw Trevor, but her joy turned to worry seconds later.

"Didn't I tell you not to return just yet?"

Trevor smiled and patted her shoulder gently to reassure her he was fine.

Aldwin didn't scare him in the slightest.

Flashing an amused grin, Ken said, "Well, I must say you're really something, young man. My son is quite notable in Corden. Not many young men are able to defeat him."

Trevor sneered. "And so? Do you want to avenge your son?"

As if he didn't sense the sarcasm and provocation in Trevor's words, Ken responded calmly, "Avenge? Of course not. On the contrary, I want to hire you as my bodyguard. Your salary will be fifty thousand dollars a month. Are you up for it?"

Slightly taken aback, Trevor clenched his jaw and studied Ken's face.

It was hard to tell whether Ken was mad because of the perpetual smile on his bearded face.

Trevor had to admit Ken might not be easy to deal with.

Although being Ken's bodyguard could be an opportunity to sneak into the Murray family and investigate further, Trevor had some doubts.

Why would Ken want to hire him after learning he beat up his son? He could be plotting something. It was very likely a trap to avenge his son.

Trevor was about to refuse when Aldwin suddenly butted in.

"Dad, you can't do that! That bastard hit me! Why would you take him as your bodyguard? He deserves to be beaten to death!"

Having enough of his son's whining, Ken dropped his calm demeanor and darted a hard look at Aldwin.

Aldwin shuddered and shut his mouth at once. He might be one of the most dangerous men in Corden, but a single threatening glance from his father was enough to send him recoiling silently into the corner of the sofa.

Trevor sneered and expressed his refusal.

"No thanks. You just said your son likes my girlfriend, and now you want me to be your bodyguard? To what do I owe this display of kindness?"

Trevor's sarcastic response threw Ken off. Cracks began to show in his calm facade as his lips curled into a cold smile.

"So you're saying you won't even consider it?"

Instead of answering, Trevor crossed his arms over his chest and regarded Ken sternly.

This had made his refusal clearer than words.

Withdrawing his gaze, Ken cocked his head on one side smugly and said in a voice dripping with sarcasm, "Very well. Then I hope you enjoy your time here in Corden, young man."

Standing up, he turned to his son. "Let's go, Aldwin."

Darting a stern look at Trevor, Aldwin stood up and followed his father to the door.

Enjoy his time in Corden?

Trevor followed them with his gaze and sneered.

He knew Ken was threatening him, but he couldn't be bothered.

Asho let out a deep sigh and said with remorse, "I'm sorry, Dragon. You got into trouble again because of us. Ken, Aldwin's father, is a powerful man here in Corden. I'm afraid that he will do something to you."

Trevor gave her a reassuring smile.

"I'm fine. It's not really a big deal because I don't like them either."

Bess also couldn't help but be worried. "I think you shouldn't go out for a few days, Dragon. You're much safer if you stay with us since they won't break in here forcefully because we're members of the Murray family."

Trevor waved his hand to decline and reasoned, "No, I don't think that's a good idea. I should live somewhere else. As you said, those two might be planning on getting back at me. If I stay here, it will put your lives in danger. I can't risk that."

However, he didn't mention the main reason for his refusal.

He couldn't tell them he had to decline their kind offer because he needed a place to work discreetly on his investigation that concerned the Murray family and Mobius.
