

Chapter 703

703 BLACK RAIN AND DARK SKY (45)

"I am not going anywhere," Aliana said sternly, she faced the two annoying men, who wanted to send her off back to the Howling Wolf pack. "I serve the luna and I received the order from the alpha, without their permission, I am not going anywhere."

Aliana was a little bit pale, because she just felt better after what happened, yet to her surprised, she woke up to see Jace was waiting for her, he was sitting on the chair beside her makeshift bed, ready to haul her back to their pack, thankfully she woke up or else, she wouldn't be to have this argumentation. Ww(ω).NOvèLW@(!)m.c(o)M

"Stop being stubborn, Aliana!" Jace roared. It was very rare for the beta to raise his voice to his younger sister before, but when he did, you could imagine how frustrated he was with her. "I will get you on that damn carriage with or without your permission! You walk inside the carriage now, or I will carry you, your choice!"

Aliana lifted her chin arrogantly. "Or you can fight me, Jace."

"Aliana!" Jace barked.

However, Aliana didn't seem to be affected at all, her expression stayed the same. She didn't bother with her older brother's anger. "I am not going anywhere. I am not a little girl, who needed your permission to do something that I want."

"You can die!"

"So be it!" Aliana shifted her attention toward Ethan, who had been silent all this time. He was exceptionally quiet for someone, who was very talkative. "Are you not going to do anything with this? Can you talk some sense to my brother?"

Ethan lifted his head and looked Aliana. "I agreed with him. I think you need to go back. This is very dangerous."

"What a bullshit!" Aliana scoffed.

But, before the situation could escalate further, Zephyr entered the room and informed them they were ready to go. There were dozens of carriages that would take the fallen warriors back to their respective pack, while the fallen Holy Knights would be cremated and their ashes would be spread in the ocean.

"The ships from Karam have been docked in the Chrystal Moon pack's harbor. Eron and I will go there to receive them. We need one of you to come with me," Zephyr reported. He needed the beta or the gamma to come with them to face the merchant from the Karam and informed them their merchant had died during the civil war.

"I will go." Ethan volunteered, it was better than if he had to deal with Aliana. Let Jace take her back to the pack with whatever way he could think off.

"I am going with you!" Aliana went after Ethan, ignoring her brother's protest. It was easier to deal with him than Jace anyway, more so, Ethan had been acting very distant with her lately. It didn't sit well with her.

Right now, the royal warriors were forced back to take shelter in the Winter Moon pack after they lost the battle against the Holy Knights and the south warriors.

However, there was news that was much worse than that for alpha Nolan.

"What do you mean my son is being kidnapped!?" he snarled angrily at the warrior, who reported it. Currently, he had gone back to his pack after being besieged in Silver River pack for weeks only to find out his son was being kidnapped.

"Someone barged inside his bedroom and took him away..." the warrior knelt down, so low, his head hit the floor, he was trembling in fear upon facing the alpha's wrath.

"Alpha!" Another warrior came inside the room and informed alpha Nolan about the letter from the Red Claw pack.

The more alpha Nolan read the letter, the more his face turned very dark, reflecting the gloomy sky out there.

"Son of bitch!" alpha Nolan roared, his claws emerged when he killed the two warriors before him, who he deemed unable to do their job, until his son was being kidnapped by the enemy. "I am going to kill Colter and ripped his heart out of his chest!"

Seeing the reaction from the alpha, people would immediately understand what had been written on the letter, which currently had been shredded into pieces.

Alpha Nolan went back to his table and saw the dagger that Dexter gave to him. He was supposed to stab Cane in his eyes, ruined his sight, but he didn't get the opportunity to do so, he couldn't even get his hands on his people.

Dexter threatened him with his own son too at that time, which forced him to choose side, but right now, his son was in the enemy's hand.

He was sure, this was Cane doing, because alpha Nolan had learned he was actually the strategist of this whole battle, he had planned out everything, including how this battle played out and alpha Colter followed his instruction.

"Call Amara and Tatiana!"

Meanwhile, Moon Dew pack didn't do well too, since they destroyed the Black Market, but still they lost their targets. What they got were only insignificant people, who only good for a sacrifice for black magic.

Redmond had been on lady Cyan's ears, which pissed Aria. He knew what to say and how to convince that dark witch, supported by an inside knowledge of Cane's movement, lady Cyan counted on the information he gave to them.

"You might be able to fool that stupid dark witch, but you can't fool me, Redmond." Aria glared at Redmond, she was still dreading the fact Cane was actually buried under the rubbles of the remaining Black Market when they exploded the place, but news came and they learned the alpha managed to escape to the Golden Light pack, joined force with the Red Claw pack, who had taken down that pack earlier.

"Oh, please..." Redmond snorted.

This dead woman was the last person he wanted to see, but this damn Moon Dew pack was not so big for him to be able to avoid her. They actually bumped onto each other in this narrow corridor, as both of them heading toward lady Cyan's bedroom.

"You are not that smart for me to fool you. Because it will only waste my precious time. I don't need to fool you, actually. You have fooled yourself."

"Watch your mouth! I am going to kill you!" Aria snarled at him.

"What? Reality hit your ugly face so hard? That's what you did when you fooled yourself into thinking Cane actually liked you, even after he was the one, who killed you and didn't even bother to come and see you off." Redmond guffawed to see Aria's face. "Keep fooling yourself, at the very least, you will not die of your foolishness." Ww(ω).NOvèLW@(!)m.c(o)M

Actually, it was great to see Aria, because he could vent out some of his frustration.

"Stay away from me!" Redmond pushed Aria so hard, until her body flew across the corridor. He didn't mind to hit woman, especially the dead one. "Dead people give me creep. Don't ever come close to me, it can be a bad luck for my day."

Aria had lost her ability to shift into her beast, she couldn't even use magic, even though it was black magic that gave her a chance to live. In a way Redmond was right. She was nothing, but a dead person, who couldn't do anything.

"I don't think we can hide my pregnancy for long," Iris said, as she stood in front of the body full mirror, staring at her own swollen belly.

The look on her face always put smile on Cane's lips, his mate looked mesmerized by her own body. He couldn't help, but approached her and hugged her from behind. She smelled so good and looked even more beautiful, as if there was this bright light that came from within her.

"What are you going to do?" Iris melted in Cane's arms, rested her back against his sturdy chest, as she giggled to see their reflection. She wanted to see her baby so bad, she was curious who the baby would take after. Would the baby have her blue eyes or Cane's black eyes? What about the hair? This silly thought would intrude her mind whenever she didn't have anything to do.

"Let it be." Ww(ω).NOvèLW@(!)m.c(o)M

"Hm?" Iris leaned her head and exposed her neck, as Cane kissed her.

"If they learned about your pregnancy, so be it." They had hidden the pregnancy as best as they could, but when they were no longer able to do that, let them know about it naturally. "When you healed the baby, was there any side effect on the baby?"

Cane wanted to know if Iris used her power, would it affect the baby, because he still conflicted whether or not to let her know about this news.

"No. I feel fine. The curse on the baby is not as heavy as I imagined. It can be said as the light one, since Haco used to train me to purify the black stone. The one Haco used to give me was way heavier. Probably, because it was a baby, so it has a very strong affect." Ww(ω).NOvèLW@(!)m.c(o)M

Iris chuckled when she felt the baby kicked her from inside. "The baby is very active."

Cane placed his palms on the spot where the baby was kicking, a warm smile on his lips. "I feel like there are two of them."

"I really want to see our child."

"Me too. I want to see our child soon."

Their wish would come true, they would see their children soon than they expected.
