

She Unveils 501

Chapter 501 Don't Be Too Harsh

"Nancy, what's wrong?"

Keith noticed Nancy's condition and hurriedly ran over to ask.

"I... I'm fine. Leave me alone!"

Nancy covered her stomach, trying to stay strong and pushed the man away. But the wrenching pain in her gut was unbearable, and she was almost in tears.

"Don't be stubborn. You don't look fine at all. And your face... your face..." Keith stared at her face, swallowing hard, clearly taken aback.

"What's wrong with my face?"

"N-Nothing."

Keith tried to help Nancy again. "Let's go to the hospital right away. If we wait any longer, something serious might happen."

"You're lying. There must be something wrong with my face."

Nancy was sweating from the pain, unable to stand steadily. She had to let Keith support her. She took out her phone to check, and let out a terrified scream, "Ah!" Her face, reflected in the phone screen, was swollen like a pig's head, with her eyes and lips distorted.

"Don't worry, it must be an allergic reaction. I'll take you to the hospital right away."

Keith acted decisively, picking up Nancy without asking for her consent, and rushed to the nearest hospital, not even having time to notify Shirley and the others.

They arrived at the hospital and registered for an emergency. When the doctor saw Nancy's condition, even he was taken aback.

"My goodness, how did it swell up like this?"

"Doctor, am I beyond saving? Am I going to die?"

"It's not that bad, but your condition is quite severe..."

The doctor couldn't help but glance at Nancy again, almost feeling nauseous, and tried to maintain a serious professional demeanor. "First, let's test for the allergen and then see how to proceed."

After testing for the allergen, Keith and Nancy sat in the hallway waiting for the results.

Chapter 502 Her Anesthetic

Nancy felt a little wronged and a little angry. She stared at the man who suddenly got furious. "I'm the one who's allergic, not you. Why are you yelling at me? If it weren't for fear of embarrassing you, would I have eaten so many shrimps and crabs? How ungrateful you are!"

"You..."

Keith's anger instantly subsided, and an even deeper sense of guilt made him lower his head. He softly said to the woman, "How could you be so silly? I thought you loved eating it, so I kept peeling it for you..."

"You're the silly one!"

Nancy glared at the man and complained, "Even if I loved eating it, you didn't have to peel it for me. I'm not your... What's the point of spending so much effort?"

Keith sighed and shook his head. "Right. I'm the fool. I'm the biggest fool in the world... You're smarter than me. You know everything."

Cordell watched the two people's sweet interaction, feeling a bit uncomfortable.

"Nancy, we need to deal with your allergic reaction as soon as possible. Follow me first."

He walked around Keith, held Nancy's hand, and spoke with concern.

"Can we change to another doctor?"

Keith was very upset, his beautiful eyes glanced at the "claw" on Nancy's arm, wishing he could cut it off directly.

"Dr. Norman's medical skills are top-notch. It's more appropriate for him to treat the patient's condition to avoid any sequelae."

The examining doctor sincerely advised.

"Haha, so because his medical skills are high, he can just touch the patient? Is this a hospital or a brothel?"

"Hey, sir, your words are too harsh. We won't allow you to be unreasonable to Dr. Norman, or we can refuse to treat the patient."

Nancy showed a disdainful expression and coldly looked at Cordell. "I don't need to report my relationship with him to you, do I?"

Cordell looked defeated, his tone becoming somewhat urgent. "Nancy, don't be angry. I just think that man doesn't seem like a good person. He's a playboy. You should stay away from him to avoid getting hurt."

"Heh. He may not look like a good person, but he's still better than a liar like you!"

Nancy grabbed Cordell's collar. There was hatred in her eyes. "I'm sparing your life only because I'm magnanimous. It doesn't mean I've forgiven you. Don't push your luck."

"You can hate me, even kill me, but don't sabotage yourself by getting involved with a man like that. You..."

Cordell didn't finish his sentence. Keith, who had been eavesdropping outside the door, couldn't stand it any longer and barged in again.

"What did you just say? Who's sabotaging? Who's getting involved? What kind of man am I? Explain yourself!"

"How did you get in again?"

“Cordell?”

Shirley was also astonished when she saw him.

She thought such a “trash” should have completely disappeared from Nancy’s world, but she didn’t expect him to show up again.

Thinking of his various “misdeeds” towards Nancy, Shirley’s anger flared up, and she grabbed his collar. “Aren’t you dead yet? What do you want by bothering Nancy again? If you’re tired of living, I can help you with that!”

“I know you’re good. And if you want someone’s life, you can take it in minutes. I’m not the first, nor the last. If it makes Nancy happy, then do it!”

Cordell closed his eyes and spoke meaningfully.

That confused Shirley.

Shirley’s grip tightened, and she frowned at the man in front of her who seemed to be ready to die.

“What do you mean by that? Why do you make it sound like I’m some kind of murderous demon? What do you mean you’re not the first, and not the last?”

Cordell’s collar was choking him, making it difficult for him to breathe, and his cheeks turned red. He said word by word, “Ms. Wilson, you know exactly what I mean. Nancy is still here, so there are some things I can’t say too openly. Some things... It’s enough that you and I know.”

“Playing tricks!”

Shirley saw that he was about to choke and eventually let go, fiercely throwing him to the ground.

Cordell got up awkwardly and went to Nancy’s side, checking her allergy recovery progress.

“Don’t worry, just get a good night’s sleep, and your face will be back to normal tomorrow.”

His tone was gentle, and his gaze even softer, as if it could melt.

Cordell noticed Shirley's panicked reaction and patted her shoulder. "Don't worry, you're one of Nancy's friends. If anything happens to you, Nancy will be unhappy too, so I won't say anything rashly."

Shirley's eyes were complicated, and she took a deep breath, looking seriously at the man. "You have to keep this secret, not telling anyone. As for the mistake I made, when the time is right, I will make amends."

"Ms. Wilson, you don't need to promise me anything. Amelie brought this upon herself. I don't think you did anything wrong. Let's just pretend that this never happened and keep it a secret between us."

Cordell touched on the topic briefly, his eyes filled with coldness and determination.

Shirley didn't doubt Cordell's honesty because this kind of indifferent expression could only come from someone who was truly cold-hearted.

However, she became more confused. Did men become so cold and ruthless after changing their hearts?

Remember, Amelie was Cordell's unattainable love, the one he was willing to deceive Nancy for and become a scoundrel!

"Cordell, I don't understand you. Isn't Amelie your true love? You know her death is related to me, but why are you so calm? Not only do you not seek revenge, but you're even willing to help me cover it up?"

Shirley hesitated for a long time before asking Cordell this question. She wasn't afraid that Cordell was playing a trick. After all, this matter was her own burden to bear, and it couldn't be hidden forever.

If he wanted to call the police or blackmail her, she was prepared to face it.

"What true love? It's just an obsession with someone I couldn't have..."

Cordell narrowed his eyes and said with emotion, "Amelie did many malicious things.

Shirley returned to the Crimson Pawnshop and thoroughly destroyed the video Cordell had given her before going to sleep, her mind weighed down with worries.

She had a restless sleep, filled with repetitive dreams.

In the dreams, Amelie, with disheveled hair, crawled out of the sea, her limbs broken, and her bones clearly visible. Her face was covered in blood, and she was laughing sinisterly at Shirley.

"Hahaha, Shirley, your good days are over. I couldn't defeat you in life, but in death, I will become a vengeful ghost and drag you down to hell with me!"

The bloodied face got closer and closer, as if it were about to cover Shirley's own face. The suffocating feeling was unbearable, and she flailed her arms wildly, shouting, ' Don't come any closer!"

"Ms. Wilson, Ms. Wilson, wake up! It's morning!" May sat by the bed, looking worriedly at Shirley and trying to wake her up.

"Ah!"

Shirley felt like someone pulled her out as she was stuck in the vortex. She suddenly opened her eyes, her heart pounding violently.

"Haha, what else could it be? Of course, it's because Alice is your doppelganger!"

The agent enthusiastically patted Shirley and excitedly said, "You two look so much alike, and everyone in our industry says that Alice is your substitute. The first movie Alice starred in was the hit fanfiction Summery Memories with the famous Mr. Stewart.

Who wouldn't fall for it? That movie made Alice an overnight sensation...' Shirley tucked her hair and continued to respond awkwardly, "I see. I've heard a little about it."

"What a pity, Mr. Stewart is now with Ms. Gilmore of the Gilmore family. The CP we once shipped has eventually come to a BE."

The agent sighed deeply, looking at Shirley with regret and sympathy. Shirley watched Alice filming from afar and couldn't help gossiping with the agent, 'Is Ms. Alice single?'

"Her?"

The agent also looked at Alice from a distance, then smiled with a pursed lip. 'She has a powerful backer now, so we can't just gossip about it!"

"Who is the powerful backer she relies on? Keith?"

"No, no, no, an even bigger backer than Mr. Guerra."

"Someone with more influence than Keith?!"

Shirley felt she was close to the truth and couldn't wait to ask, "Who is it? Didn't Keith support her all along? Did something unpleasant happen between the two of them?"

Shirley guessed that there must have been some significant conflict between the two, so significant that Keith had been psychologically affected, causing him to hesitate and struggle with his feelings now.

"I'm not sure about the details. All I know is that initially..."

The agent was about to indulge in a long chat out of admiration for Shirley, but Alice finished filming at that moment and walked towards them, assisted by an umbrella holding helper.

Shirley walked towards the parking lot, feeling increasingly dizzy and heavy-footed.

"Alright, actors to your positions, action!"

The sound of the director's clapperboard came from behind.

Alice had already left the resting area and started shooting by the cliffside.

Strangely, in her daze, Shirley saw Alice, with her long hair and white dress, as Amelie, whom she had accidentally pushed off the cliff three months ago.

Alice and Amelie's faces merged together, their sinister smiles crossing layers of crew members, and blood began to flow from the corners of their eyes and mouths...

"No, don't come over!"

Shirley's vision went white, and she fell heavily to the ground. She didn't know how much time had passed, or even if she was still alive, until a basin of cold water was poured on her face.

She suddenly opened her eyes and found herself lying in a dark, damp little warehouse, her neck chained like a dog, leaving a red mark.

"You wicked woman, you're finally awake!" A cold voice came from the top of the warehouse.

Tracy appeared in Shirley's sight, and Alina stood beside her, her eyes like venomous snakes, filled with intense hatred.

"Tracy, since this wicked woman is awake, let's not be polite. Let's just do it."

Alina urged Tracy, eager to torture Shirley on the spot.

There was no fear on Shirley's face, and she even couldn't help laughing. She was completely free from the wretchedness of being controlled.

“Bitch, how can you still laugh when you’re facing death?”

Alina was furious and slapped Shirley hard. She questioned, “What’s so funny? Aren’t you afraid at all?”

Five fingerprints immediately appeared on Shirley’s fair cheek, and blood oozed from the corner of her mouth. She looked very painful, but she didn’t even frown. Instead, she laughed more heartless.

“Hahaha, I laugh because

I think you are ridiculous. You are about to die, but you are still here to show off. Isn’t it funny?”

“What do you mean? How dare you curse me?”

Alina was already very guilty, and her words made her feel even more guilty. She wanted to slap Shirley again, but she was kicked far away by Shirley agilely.

“Ugh!”

Alina clutched her stomach with a crumpled face, feeling that her internal organs were about to be broken. Her fingers trembled as she pointed at Shirley. ‘You, you...’
