Chapter 511 Hating Me Is Better Than Loving Me

There was no doubt that Shirley escaped the disaster.

However, she did not retaliate against Alina. Instead, she felt sorry for her.

It was her brother's fault, and she also owed Alina. She would find a way to make it up to her.

As for Braden, she felt it was necessary for her to bid him farewell.

Even if they were no longer together, she did not wish there to be regret between them, and she hoped that when they looked back upon it in the future, it would be a happy memory.

"Let go of me, Shirley, you evil woman! Let go of me if you dare!"

Alina was tied to the pillar of the warehouse by Shirley, screaming like a madwoman as she struggled.

"Don't be nervous, I'm just tying you up for now, and when I finish my business, I'll have someone let you go."

Shirley's tone was calm as she tried her best to soothe Alina's emotions. "I know I've wronged you. I won't let you suffer those hurt for nothing."

"Bitch, you don't need to be hypocritical. You either kill me or let me go, instead of torturing me in this way!"

Braden's words confirmed Shirley's suspicions that he had gone blind. She was standing right in front of him, but he couldn't see her at all.

"Then you must be Alina."

Without giving it much thought, Braden pointed to the chair next to him and whispered, "The moon should be fine tonight. The night breeze is cool. Stay with me for a while."

"OK."

Shirley imitated Alina's voice and responded in a low voice.

Braden didn't notice anything unusual. In this situation, no one else was allowed to approach except his mother and Alina. Naturally, he wouldn't think of anyone else.

Seeing the man fumbling for something, Shirley guessed that he was thinking about coffee, so she thoughtfully handed the coffee cup to him.

Their fingers touched for a brief moment.

Braden's eyebrows furrowed. He seemed to have discovered something, but he didn't show it and took a sip of his coffee.

The two of them just sat there quietly without talking.

The night breeze brushed their faces, bringing the fragrance of flowers, which was harmonious and romantic.

After a long while, Braden said, 'Alina, you know me well. You won't be as noisy as my mother, and you know I love this kind of hand-ground coffee.'

"I didn't like coffee before, especially at night. Whenever I get coffee, I won't sleep all night. But my ex-wife enjoys these things. I don't know where she got the coffee beans. I don't know where she bought the coffee machine from, let alone how she ground the coffee so finely. In short, the coffee she makes has a special magic. After a sip, I get addicted to it. Overtime, I also get into the habit of drinking coffee."

The woman in his arms moved uncomfortably and said cautiously, “Mr. Stewart, you misunderstood me. I’m not Ms. Wilson.”

Braden's body immediately froze, and his handsome and cold face was full of gloominess. He said coldly, "Who are you?"

"I, I am Pamela Jonathan, the nurse sent by Mrs. Stewart to take care of you."

Pamela had an oval face and fair skin. It seemed that she was good-natured and pure.

Braden's face darkened. He pushed the woman away and questioned in a displeased tone, "How long have you been here?"

"It's been a while."

"So, you've always been the one who poured me coffee and chatted with me in the night breeze?"

"Yes, yes."

In order to win Braden's affection, she completely concealed the fact that Shirley had been there and instead said, "You are in a bad mood and need quiet companionship, so I just wanted to listen to you. I didn't expect you to mistakenly think it was Ms. Wilson. I'm really sorry."

Chapter 514 He Wanted to Die

Ignoring Braden's cold gaze, Tracy began to explain in detail, "Blossom Medical Group is very mysterious. It's a mystery where it started and who the leader is. However, their status in the medical field is comparable to that of the best doctor in the world. It's not an exaggeration to say that their unique method of Bloodletting and Bone-smoking is a technique of reincarnation..."

"No matter how sick you are, as long as you go and see the leader for treatment, it won't take more than ten days for you to recover. If we can get in touch with the leader through the help of Pamela, you will restore your sight, even the blood phobia that has been plaguing you can be cured!"

Speaking to this point, she sighed and silently wiped her tears, "As long as your chronic illness can get better, I won't have any regrets even if I die immediately."

Braden was ignoring all the words Tracy had said, but when he heard the word

"Bloodletting and Bone-smoking", he was still a little interested. "I've only heard of bone scraping, but I've never heard of 'Bloodletting and Bonesmoking.' This leader has a rather peculiar taste. Is this a way to bleed the patient?"

"Who knows? You're also curious, aren't you? Anyway, we have no other way now. Why don't we find this master to try it out? What do you think?"

"If you can find this doctor, then give it a try."

Braden's attitude softened. He had been self-isolated at first, resisting treatment from anyone, and now he was willing to try. It was not easy for him to be like this. However, he was not willing to give it a try for the sake of recovery. Instead, he wanted to die.

In his position, it was impossible for him to commit suicide. It was too cowardly, and it would cause the living to suffer for the rest of their lives. If he died "accidentally", he would feel less guilty.

The doctor's medical skills of Bloodletting and Bone-smoking were as absurd as exorcism. It was suitable for him to have an 'accident' without guilt.

When Tracy heard the name "Shirley", her expression immediately became unnatural.

At that moment, she wondered how she was doing. She guessed that Alina must have tortured her severely.

There was still some sadness in her heart, but she didn't regret it.

After all, the wicked woman had ruined her only son, Braden, without even the remotest regret. Even if she were to be torn to shreds, it would not be an exaggeration.

"You know, Braden and your sister-in-law are divorced. Even if you call her, it's useless. You just need to remember that Braden doesn't like idlers staying overnight..."

Tracy was unsure, and her attitude gradually became impatient. She ordered, "It's getting late. Molly, see him out!"

Antwan's smile also changed from playful to cold, and he went straight to the point,

“Aunt Tracy, to tell you the truth, since I came to you at this time, don’t expect me to leave so easily. I’m here for someone. Don’t expect me to leave if I can’t find this person.”

“Who... who do you want?”

“You should know very well who I want.” Antwan said ruthlessly, “I got the news that my sister-in-law met an actress named Alice Palmer during the day and has not contacted the outside world since. Alice was your adopted daughter in the first few years in order to please Braden. The only person she had contact with before Shirley disappeared was you... “You’re here to save the beauty, aren’t you? It’s a pity that you’re late!”

Alina’s hand hurt from Antwan’s tugging.

“What do you mean?”

Antwan was no longer as calm as he usually was, and he was very agitated.

“Why are you yelling? You behave as if she were your wife. Does she have anything to do with you? You’re always the second choice!”

Alina’s words were harsh.

“Don’t talk nonsense with me. I’ll ask you one more time, where is Shirley?”

Antwan was completely irrational. He grabbed Alina’s neck with both hands and asked with a hideous face.

At such a critical moment, even if it was just a second delay, there might be irreversible consequences, and he couldn’t afford to delay!

“She, she’s dead!”

Alina was about to suffocate, her cheeks flushed.

“What? Said it again!”

Antwan was completely out of his mind. He wanted to snap Alina’s neck on the spot.

The remaining trace of sanity made him let go of his fingers. He lifted the woman up and asked like a devil, “What exactly happened? What did you do to her?”

After regaining her freedom, Alina immediately ran toward Braden, who was at the warehouse entrance.

"Braden, how are you? Are you hurt? Where's Tracy? Don't tell me you came alone?" Ignoring the injuries on her body, she steadily held the man's arm and looked around for Tracy.

"I came alone."

Braden's voice was cold and emotionless.

"What? You came alone? How did you do it? Are you really not hurt?"

Alina could not imagine how a blind man like Braden could have made his way from a mansion tens of miles away to this out-of-the-way warehouse that lay on a dangerous terrace.

"It doesn't matter. Tell me where Shirley is."

Braden's deep eyes were hidden in the darkness as he questioned the woman in an urgent tone.

"Do you love her that much?"

Alina's heart ached, and she inexplicably felt sad. With tears welling up in her eyes, she said, "She did this to you and me. Don't you hate her at all? You came all the way here alone. Have you ever thought about what would happen if you ran into an enemy? Even if you didn't run into an enemy, the consequences would still be unimaginable if you met any crazy motorbike. Do you really want to die for her?"

"It doesn't matter."

Braden's handsome face was cold. He shook off Alina's support and fumbled to walk out. "If you really don't want to tell me, I'll find her myself."

"I... I'll go with you. I know where she is. I'll go with you!"

No matter how much Alina hated and was angry, she couldn't let Braden go alone, let alone Antwan, who was a wolf in sheep's clothing.

As the two argued, there were sudden lights. Then the sound of a car braking was heard in the dark.

Shirley opened the driver's seat door and walked down coldly, looking at the two clearly illuminated by the beam of light.

"What are you two doing?" She asked in a god-like tone.

Both Antwan and Alina froze.

"Great, Shirley, you finally show up!"

The man's tensed face relaxed at once, and tears welled up in his eyes with excitement. "Do you know you almost scared me to death? I almost jumped down to look for you..."

Shirley frowned slightly and said with a confused expression, "Why would you jump down to find me?"

After leaving the Stewart's house, she planned to go straight back to Crimson Pawnshop, but she was still worried about Alina, so she came back and was ready to let her go and talk to her about Braden.

When she arrived at the warehouse, she saw two people arguing fiercely by the river from a distance. She didn't expect it to be Antwan and Alina!

Before Antwan could answer, Alina had already broken free from his grip. She rushed toward Shirley like a madwoman and slapped her hard. "You jinx! Why are you still alive? Braden jumped into the river to save you. If anything happens to him, I'll fight you to the death!"

"Braden Stewart?"

Shirley could no longer keep her cool and said incredulously, "Are you kidding me? Isn't he at the Stewart's house? Why is he here and... jumped into the river?"

"Well, it's all for saving you jinx. Why don't you just die? Die! Die! Then we'll all be free!"

Alina's hatred for Shirley reached its limit. Like a madwoman, she grabbed Shirley with disheveled hair.

Chapter 519 Like Inseparable Vines

Sure enough, she saw Braden lying flat on a piece of rock beside the river.

“Braden!”

She was ecstatic and rushed towards the man regardless of the scratches on her feet.

At that moment, Braden was in a coma because he choked on water. Like Shirley, he had many scratches on his body, and his old disease relapsed in his left leg. He couldn’t move at all.

“You must hold on, you must hold on!”

Shirley felt as if her heart had been cut by millions of knives, and it was so painful that it hurt her to the bone.

While crying, she endured the pain and brought the man to the shore. Then, she bent down to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

His lips were as cold as his body, and his handsome face turned as pale as a corpse’s because he had been soaked in water for too long!

“Wake up, Braden Stewart! Wake up!”

Shirley quickly pressed the man’s chest and gave him mouth-to-mouth. Tears rolled uncontrollably down her eyes like beads.

She had lived for so many years and had encountered countless accidents of all kinds. Never had she ever been so panicked and scared like this.

Even though she had made up her mind not to have any future with the man, she still hoped that he could be safe and happy.

“Khak, khak, khak!”

Braden finally regained some consciousness after Shirley tried her best to save him. His large palm held Shirley’s hand tightly, just like a person in hell who pulled the only connection to the world.

“That’s great! Braden, hang in there! Help is coming!”

Shirley continued prone and performed CPR on Braden. She had been so familiar with his lips, so enamoured. In the course of time she at last felt a little warmth from those cold lips.

“You’re so low!”

Alina clenched her fists and tried to hide her dismay with a fierce look. Antwan’s words hit her sore spot.

Over the years, she and Braden were like brothers. They seemed to be close, others may not think it was unusual for them to hold hands, even if they ate and slept together.

However, that was completely different from holding hands between a couple. She had always dreamed that she and Braden would become a real couple. Then they could hold hands, kiss, and even be more intimate.

“You are angry from embarrassment. It seems that I am right. You are noble, but you are unwilling. Such unwillingness will only make you more and more distorted, and finally become lower and more perverted than me.”

Antwan approached Alina with a meaningful smile.

“Bullshit! I’m not like you. I love Braden, so I won’t hurt him. But look at what you’ve done. You say you love Shirley. Yet all you’ve done is to hurt her. She’s right. Your love is to destroy. You’re insane!”

Alina was very disdainful of Antwan. She and Antwan grew up together, but since she was on Braden’s side, they naturally became enemies.

If he hadn’t promised her that she would be with Braden as long as she behaved herself, she probably wouldn’t even bother to say a word to him in this life.

Although he did fulfill his promises and she managed to get together with Braden, she still found it annoying and felt that something was missing.

“Hahaha, Ms. Gilmore, have found your conscience and are you ready to retreat? Are you so generous that you want to wish these two lovers a happy ending?”

Antwan laughed as if he had discovered a big joke.

“I can’t give them my wish. I’ve just been through so many things, and I’m too tired to fight anymore...”

Alina looked at the two emergency lights flashing at the same time and said with mixed feelings, “I’ve always thought that Shirley doesn’t love Braden at all. She only loves Braden’s identity and halo around him. But today I’ve wavered. I can’t believe that she could die for Braden. It’s such a high cliff and a deep river. Yet she could still jump without thinking twice. Where had she found the courage? I can’t even do it myself...”
